INTRODUCTION

THIS book is dedicated to the Whitmarsh cousins whose interest in each other has led to the collection and publication of this genealogy.

The book is a revision and enlargement of a pamphlet of Whitmarsh Genealogy published by the author fourteen years ago. The record of the first five generations of the descendants of John Whitmarsh of Weymouth, Mass., is given here, so far as they could be obtained. Later generations are given only as material came to hand, and are chiefly of the immediate branch of the author's ancestry.

Little attempt has been made to record descendants outside of the Whitmarsh name, except that some of the descendants of Jacob Whitmarsh, No. 35, are given in other families, and all descendants of Jacob, No. 44.

The earlier generations of descendants of John Whitmarsh resided at Weymouth, gradually moving south to Abington and Bridgewater. Samuel, No. 9, removed to Dighton, Mass., where some of his descendants are still found. Jacob, No. 35, went to Cummington, Mass., and his descendants are numerous in that region. Later generations scattered to all points of the west.

Nicholas Whitmarsh, No. 10, probably married Mercy Thompson, daughter of John Thompson and Mary Cook, daughter Francis Cook of the Mayflower.

Jacob Whitmarsh, No. 35, married Anna Pool, daughter of Samuel Pool and Ruth Fullerton, daughter of John Fullerton and Ruth Sampson. Ruth Sampson was, probably, daughter of Caleb Sampson and Mercy Standish, daughter of Alexander Standish, son of Miles Standish, and Sarah Alden, daughter of John and Priscilla Alden of the Mayflower. The connecting link, which is the parentage of Ruth Sampson, is questioned, but the weight of evidence is in favor of the ancestry as given above.

Thanks are due to many friends and relatives for assistance in securing the data for this work.

In the earlier generations thanks are especially due to the late Frank A. Bates of South Braintree, Mass., for his assistance, which his acquaintance with Braintree and Weymouth genealogy made of the greatest value.

The record of the descendants of Samuel, No. 9, who went to Dighton, Mass., was procured by George B. Stackpole, of Taunton, Mass., in 1905, with additions by a few later descendants.

For the genealogy of the descendants of William, No. 25, acknowledgment is made of the service rendered by Charles W. Whitmarsh, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, now of Los Angeles, Cal., and his brother, Henry W. Whitmarsh, of Los Angeles.

Nash's History of Weymouth, Mitchell's History of Bridgewater, and the church and town records of Weymouth and Abington have proved of great assistance.

Especial mention should be made of the financial assistance given by Thomas C. Whitmarsh, of St. Louis, who has borne a large share of the expense of publication.

While no promises are made as to a future publication, the author wishes to continue the collection of material and will be pleased to receive corrections and additions to the data concerning omitted members of the family, which will be printed in case a supplement should be issued. It will, therefore, be a favor if every one who comes into possession of a copy of this work will send his name and address to the author, with such additional data as may be available.

Whitmarsh Genealogy

Remember the days of old,
Consider the years of many generations;
Ask thy father and he will show thee;
Thine elders, and they will tell thee.

WHITMARSH GENEALOGY

1. JOHN WHITMARSH, the immigrant ancestor of the Whitmarsh family in America, was one of Rev. Joseph Hull's company that sailed from Weymouth, England, March 20, 1635. The family is given in the passenger list as follows:

"Jno. Whitmarsk aged 39 yeare,
Alce Whitmarke his Wife aged 35 yeare,
Jms Whitmarcke his sonne aged 11 yeare,
Jane his daughter aged 7 yeare,
Onseph Whitmarke his sonne aged 5 yeare,
Rich: Whytemark his sonne aged 2 yeare."

It will be observed that the name is spelled in four different ways, but always with k instead of h. The different spelling is due probably to the ignorance or carelessness of the clerk, but the presence of the k suggests a possible origin for the name. If Whytemark is the original form, the name perhaps was descriptive of some early ancestor.

Another suggested derivation of the name is from Whitnash.

The simplest derivation, if the name were Whitmarsh at the beginning, is that some ancestor dwelt near a marsh, known as the white marsh, and came to be known as "John of the white marsh" or John Whitmarsh. These derivations are, however, only conjecture.

The English home of John Whitmarsh, the immigrant, is not yet positively determined, but there is reason to think that he may have come from Batcombe, Somerset County, England, as the "Genealogy of Richard Porter of Weymouth" mentions among those who came to Weymouth, John Whitmarsh and William Reed of Batcombe. There are Whitmarsh families in the south of England at present.

On July 8, 1635, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an order permitting Rev. Joseph Hull's company of twenty-one families to settle at Wessaguscus, which was incorporated under the name of Weymouth, Sept. 2, 1635.

Town records show that John Whitmarsh owned several pieces of land in Weymouth, before 1644, including "two acres upon the plain," "three acres upon King Oak Hill," "two acres in west field," "two and one-half acres of fresh marsh," "five acres on King Oak Hill," besides other lands.

There is also a description of lands of Nicholas, Richard, Onesiphorus and Simon Whitmarsh, mentioning "nine acres in the westerneck first given to their father, John Whitmarsh, deceased." This proves that John Whitmarsh, immigrant, died before 1644. It also proves the existence of two sons, Nicholas and Simon, not mentioned in the passenger list.

In the description of John Harding's land, mention is made of "Halfe an acre of fresh marsh which he gave to John Whitmarsh sonn of the aforesaid John Whitmarsh." This establishes the fact that John Whitmarsh, immigrant, had a son John.

There is no record of the death of John Whitmarsh or of his wife, Alice, except the fact that he died before 1644.

We have no data to show the age of the three sons Simon, John and Nicholas, except the fact that Simon was a land owner before 1644. Possibly these three were elder sons who came over after the family was established here. If so, the order of ages may have been as follows:

2. i. Simon or Simeon.
3. ii. John.
4. iii. Nicholas.
iv. James born about 1624.
v. Jane, born about 1628.
vi. Onesiphorus, born about 1630.

He married (1), Sarah, daughter of Capt. John Holbrook, and (2), Elizabeth, daughter of John Bicknell. His will, dated April 29, 1708, pro-bated Sept. 9, 1708, leaves property valued at £151—18s—3d to wife Elizabeth, daughter Mary Jackson, son-in-law Edward Darby, daughter Alice, and son John. The widow and Samuel Vinson, brother-in-law, are executors.

6. JOHN[3] WHITMARSH (John[2 1]), called also Increase, born Aug. 23, 1655, at Weymouth, married perhaps, Mary Harding, daughter of John Harding, son of Richard Harding. Proof of this is found in the fact that Oct. 31, 1682, John Whitmarsh was appointed administrator of the estate of John Harding "in right of Mary, the only child." Richard Harding was probably the brother of John whose daughter Sarah married John[2] Whitmarsh (John[1]). John Whitmarsh, Jr., mariner, buys 5 acres of land next the town burying place and a mansion house that was the dwelling of Rev. Mr. Torry, Feb. 12, 1723-4, of Sarah Torry, widow of Micajah Torry. Their children, born at Abington, were:

It is probable that Jacob No. 24, or his son Jacob No. 35, were soldiers in the Revolution. "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Revolution" contains the following: "Jacob Whitmarsh, private in Capt. Nathan Snow's company, Col. Hawes's regiment; enlisted Sept. 24, 1777; service one month and nine days at Rhode Island on a secret expedition. Roll sworn to at Plymouth." So far as can be learned there were none of this name who could have been soldiers at this time except Jacob No. 24, or his son Jacob No. 35. There is evidence that Capt. Snow's company was composed of men from Abington and Bridgewater.

Hayden, of Braintree. Farmer, sometimes called "gentleman." In Braintree records he is called Lieut. William Whitmarsh. In the Muster Roll of Capt. Samuel Thaxter's company, William Whitmarsh of Braintree is Lieutenant, in 1755, in the Crown Point Expedition.

As neither his death nor that of his wife appears in the Braintree records they probably moved from that place.
